Justice Field's Decision in the Matter.

THE SENATOR NEED NOT ANSWER. Congress Has no Right to Demand the Production of Private Papers, Books, Etc., Etc.

San Francisco, August 29.—Justice Field, of the United States supreme court, delivered his opinion this morning in the matter of the petition of the Pacific railway commission to compel Senator Leland Stanford to answer the commission's questions respecting the management of the Central Pacific railway, and particularly to explain certain varieties of the ticularly to explain certain vouchers of the railway company, and whether any money represented in certain unexplained vouchers was used to influence national or state legislation

The matter was argued before Justice Field, sitting with United States Circuit Judge Sawyer and United States District Judges Hoffman and Sabin, last Monday. The chief question raised was to determine the power of the railway commission to compel the witnesses in question to answer their questions. The deciion of Justice Field was as follows:

The motion for peremptory order of the witness's interrogatories printed by the railroad commission has been fully argue1, and everything that could said in its favor has been ably presented by the be said in its tayor has been ably presented by the United States attorney, either in oral or printed argument. In resting the motion the counsel of respondent have not confined themselves to the discussion of the propriety and necessity of the interrogatories, and the sufficiency of the answers given by him, but they have assailed the validity of the act creating the commission, so far as it cussion of the propriety and necessity of the interrogatories, and the sufficiency of the answers given by him, but they have assailed the validity of the act creating the commission, so far as it authorizes an examination into the private affairs of the directors, officers and employes of the Central Pacific ruifroad company, and confers the right to invoke the power of federal cours in aid of the general investigation ordered. Impressed, by the gravity of the questions presented, we have given to them all the consideration in our power. The Pacific railway commission, created under the act of March 3, 1887, is not a judicial body. It peacesses no judicial power. It can determine no right to the government or of the companies whose affairs it investigates. These rights will remain a subject of judicial inquiry and determination as fully as though the commission had never been created, and in such inquiry its report to the president of its action will not be admissible as evidence of any matters investigated. It is more a matter of inquiry directed to obtain information upon certain matters than to the result of its investigation to the president, also to lay the same before congress. In the progress of its investigation and in furtherance of them it is, in terms, authorized to invoke the aid of the courts of the United States in requiring the attendance and testimony of winesses and their production of book, papers and documents; and the act provides that a circuit or district court of the United States, within the jurisdiction of which occurs the contumacy or refusal of any person to obtor a subpocent to him, may issue an order requiring such persons to appear before the commissioners and produce the books and papers and give evidence touching the matters in question.
Of all the rights of a circuit green to the prosecution of the right of personal security, and that from assault, but exemption of his private affairs,

In the recent case o Boyd vs. the United Stat In the recent case of Boyd vs. the United States, its United States, 616, the supreme court held that the provision of the law of congress which authorized a court of the United States in revenue cases, on metion of the government attorney, to require a defendant or claimant to reproduce in court his private books, invoices and papers, or that the allegaof the party's goods. The court, speaking by states Bradley, said:

"Any compulsory discovery, by extorting a party's oath or compelling the production of his private books and papers to conviet him of crime or to forfeit his property, is contrary to the principles of free government. It is abhorient to the instincts of an Englishman; it is abhoried by the instincts of an American. It may suit the purpose of a despotic power, but it cannot abide the pure atmosphere of political liberty and personal freedom."

The language thus used has reference, it is true, to the compulsory production of rapers as the foundary

American. It may suit the purpose of acceptant power, but it cannot abide the pure atmosphere of political liberty and personal freedom."

The language thus used has reference, it is true, to the compulsory production of papers as the foundation for criminal proceedings, but it is applicable to any such production of the private books and papers of a party, otherwise than in the ocurse of judicial proceedings or a direct suit for that purpose, it is a forcible intrusion into and compulsary exposure of one's private affairs and papers without policial proceedings, which is contrary to the principles of free government and abhorrent to the instincts of Fn dishmen and Americaus. In Kilbourne vs. Thompson (112 United States, 163) we haveadecision of the supam court of the United States that neither house of congress had power to make inquiries into the private affairs of citizens. In that case the firm of Jay Cook & Co. were debtors of the United States, and it was alleged that they were interested in a real estate pool in the city of Washington and that the trustees of their estate and effects had made settlement of their interests with associates of the firm to the disadvantage and loss of numerous creditors, including the government of the United States. The house of representatives, by resolution reciting the facts, authorized the speaker to appoint a committee of five to inquire into the matter and history of said real estate and papers, and to report to the house. A commission was appointed and organized and proceeded to the house. A commission was appointed and organized and proceeded to the house. A commission was appointed and organized and proceeded to the finance of five members of the real estate pool, and where each resided. He report to the house, and it ordered the speaker to issue his warrant directing the servent-each reports, papers and maps relating to the inquiry. Kilbqurne appeared before the commistice reported the matter to be inquired. The committee and was asked to stat: the names of five m diff denurred. The denurrer was overruled and indepent affirmed as to all the defendants except the sergeaut-at-arms. They, being members of the house, were held to be protected from prosceution for their action. But, as Thompson's judgment was reversed and the case remanded for further proceedings in supreme court, the case received great consideration, and it was held that the subject matter of investigation was judicial and not legislative, and there was no power in congress or in cither house, on allegations that an insolvent debitor of the United States was not interested in a private business partnership, to investigate the affairs of part neohip and consequently no authority to compel wilness to testify on subject.

The act of congress creating the courts in an inquiry that is not judicial.

The court, therefore, declines to make an order compeling officers to answer questions, and also declines to make an order giving the commission accessed the books of various construction companiles.

Julilation Over the Arrival of the Yacht

Jubilation Over the Arrival of the Yacht Mohican.

New York, August 29.—The Thisfle's dock this morning presented a busy scene. Her skipper was making preparations for his first spin over the course, where he/expects to make sturdy efforts for the American cup. Just as the anghor was about tripped one of the crew, who had been in this city, arrived and announced the safe arrival, though after a stormy and eventful passage, of the yacht Mohican at Halifax. The crew, in- fact all hands, were so elated at the news that they let the anchor and everything else go in order to give three times three rousing cheers. No one, unless holding a written order from Mr. Bell, will be allowed to sail on the sloop.

About the time the eager lookers from land gave up as bad job the attempt to see what more the Thistle was doing, Captain Barr had the big spinnaker hauled down to the boom, that helped her somewhat, but as the wind lightened soon after the great side sail was set the extra canvas was taken in and the reach for the point of. Sandy Hook was made. Going out to deep water, the Thistle made the Scotland light ships, but as Captain Barr now felt sure that the wind would let up before long, the boat was put about for home. She had pratty nearly a dead beat back to Tompkinsville. She stood under the sails that she started out with and took it easy all the way home. Although there was no apparent effort to make the sailors lend an extra hand in the work, the boat always went in stays quickly, and when she came up into the wind, it was invariably in a steady, positive manner, that made the omlookers think that she was a mighty handy boat. The same appearance of logginess marked the Thistle was prepared to drop anchor. The Thistle's mainsail seemed too big along the mast. Captain Barr said the day was satisfactory except in that the yacht's bottom was dirty.

Springfield, Mo., August 29.—The railroad and warehouse commissioners received a letter from Frank M. Johnson and W. S. They say the cause was said to be a broken rail, but an examination showed that the ties were too rotten to hold the spikes. They also sent a piece of rail about twenty inches long, by express, as a sample of rails in use between Streator and Fairburg. Its face is worn down smooth or completely broken off, leaving only a narrow part which supports the top of the rail for the train to run over. In conclusion the letter says the road is no longer fit to be used for railroad. The commission will look into the merits of the complaint at an early day.

Although the population had decreased 200,000 since 1880, the cost of the police service had increased over £250,000. This waste of the public money over £250,000. This waste of the public money was not due to crime. A monstrous and corrupt police force was kept up to evade the provisions of the mutiny act by maintaining a larger military force than was sanctioned by parliament. The law was not enforced and rents were not collected and the only effect of employing the police was to create wide spread disaffection and to exasperate the people.

Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, said he would not deny that the cost of the police force of Ireland was largely in excess of that of England. He asserted that the responsibility for this state of affairs rested on those who were doing their best to foment the discontent in Ireland.

Mr. Sexton said he believed that Ireland was the only country in the world where, with a steady decreasing population, there existed a steadily increasing police force to overawe the steadily increasing punce local varieties of the two people.

Mr. Dillon asked on what principle the two resident magistrates, to try William O'Brien, would be selected by the government, and when their names would be announced.

Colonel King Harmon, under secretary for Ireland, said the case would be tried by magistrates in the usual way and in conformity with the crimes act, but that it was not customary to announce the names of the magistrates in such cases.

to amounce the names of the magistrates in such cases.

The Parnellites are determined that parliament shall not rise until a decision shall have been reached in the case of Mr. O'Brien, and began tonight what promises to be a prolonged discussion of the Irish estimates. Even by resorting to the cloture rule, the government will be unable to balk their purposes. Mr. O'Brien's trial opens on September 8. Any attempt by the prosecution to strain the meaning of the crimes act as affecting Mr. O'Brien's case will be the occasion of a ficree protest by his colleagues in parliament. Conservative whips will be obliged to keep twenty members within hall to prevent surprise.

They also sent a piece of rail about twenty inches long, by express, as a sample of rails in use between Streator and Fairburg. Its face is worn down smooth or completely broken off, leaving only a narrow part which supports the top of the rail for the train to run 'over. In conclusion the letter says the road is no longer fit to be used for railroad. The commission will look into the merits of the complaint at an early day.

Prince Victor's Manifesto. Prince Victor's Manifesto.

Paris, August 29.—Prince Victor, son of Prince Jerome Bonaparte, has issued a manifesto at Brussels, in which he condemns the conservative party of France for supporting the opportunist cabinet. He describes the present condition of his party and expresses his views as to the proper course to be pursued to accomplish the end in view—the restoration of the empire. The manifesto is remarkable in its failure to make any mention of Paul de Cassagnac, the whilom champion of Bonapartism.

Mr. Heaiy asked whether the statement made by Sir Henry Holland, in reference to Sir John MacDonald, extended to the report that imperial troops in Canada would be concentrated at Winnipeg.

Sir Henry replied that he had the authority of M. Stanhope, secretary of state, for war; that that was also a pure fabrication.

EARTHQUAKE IN MEXICO.

People Rush to the Streets and Fall on Their Knees.

CITY OF MEXICO, via; Galveston, August 29.—A brisk earthquake shock was experienced here about seven o'clock this morning, agitating houses and making the people dizzy. In some streets the people ran out of their houses and fell on their knees, praying. The shock was not severe and was most felt in the outlying portion of the city. Mr. Thomas B. Connery, secretary of the United States legation, noted the shock at 6:45 o'clock and about the same time it was felt sharply at Castle Chapultepec, where President Diaz and his family are residing. Early morning riders on the Pazo de la Reform noted the shock as lasting some thirty seconds. The friends of Zuniga, who predicted the shock for the tenth of this month, now claim that their prophet was not altogether destitute of knowledge of the coming earthquake. The weather is warm and the atmosphere humid.

THE DEAN BILL AGAIN.

The Senate Reconsiders the Dean Bill.

FUNDING BILL PASSED BY THE SENATE. Routine Work in Both Branches of the Legislature—Some Important New Bills—Other State News.

Atter the reading of the journal in the senate yesterday, Mr. Dean rose and moved to reconsider the vote by which the senate indefinitely postponed the bill providing for the sale of the Western and Atlantic railroad. Mr. Dean said his object in having the bill reconsidered was to get it recommitted to the finance committee, where it could be improved and perfected, and more fully meet with the views of the senate.

The yeas and nays were demanded upon the motion by Mr. Butt. The call was sustained, and the senate by 16 yeas to 9 nays moved to reconsider. There were only twenty-five senators, one more than half, present, and it was said by one who was opposed to the measure all the while that had there been a full senate the bill would not have been reconsidered. Mr. Dean thinks that the bill can be so amended as to secure greater strength, and while he has not said anything directly upon that point, the course the bill took going again to the finance committee would seem to indicate that it will be again brought up this

MONDAY AN MACON

Bits of News From the Central City.

A BIG NUISANCE ORDERED ABATED.

New Market House Bonds to Be Pur

Macos, Ga., Angust 29.—[Special.]—For a long time the stopping of long trains across Bridgerow, on the East Tennessee road, thereby detaining street cars, vehicles and pedestrians, has been an unmitigated nuisance. People are forced to await the pleasure of the railroad men, and no more courtesy is shown passengers on one of the most traveled thoroughfares in Macon, than would be shown turpentine hands at a distillery near some out of the way station.

Chief Wiley issued strict orders a few days since, to enforce the ordinance governing the stopping of trains at this point, and yesterday Patrolman Joe Porter arrested Conductor John Lichardson and summoned him to appear before the recorder tomorrow on a charge of violating the depot ordinance. The conductor was allowed to proceed with his train on condition that he appear here to answer the charges tomorrow.

Today Acting Lieutenant Baughn issued peremptory orders from Chief Wiley to the patrolmen of his squad to arrest all persons violating this ordinance. The chief is bound to abate the nuisance.

THE FAIR GROUNDS

Being Put in First Class Order for the Coming Fair.

Macon, Ga., August 29.—[Special.]—A visit to the park discloses the fact that Mayor Price and Captain Jim Simpson are making things hum in that locality. The buildings are being thoroughly overhauled inside and out and put thoroughly overhauled inside and out and put in first class repair. A coat of pink whitewash is being laid on the rough walls, and the dressed portions are being handsomely painted. All the big holes in the park and mile track have been filled, and thirteen wagons and four carts are busy hauling clay for the finishing tonches.

Seventy-five hands are at work, a large portion of whom are engaged in raising the levee. Captain Simpson will raise it several feet, and finish it with a wood base so that it will not be so easily broken by the floods.

He will put down eight or ten inches of raidly on the rock, then wet and roll it, finishing with three or four inches of surface soil, so as to render it firm and elastic.

On the curves he will give it a grade of about sixteen inches from the inside outwards, while on the congents he will grade it only three or four inches, just enough to let the water off.

When completed it will be the finest track in the south. The red clay is being obtained from the hill on Seventh street, which will be greatly improved by the cutting down of the bank.

Everything indicates that the grounds will bank.

Everything indicates that the grounds will be in better condition than ever before for the State fair.

Colonel Grier was out today for the first time, and though still feeble, he is looking almost as well as usual. He is removing his office to parlor No. 2, in the Hotel Lanier today, which makes it much more convenient and acceptable.

Colonel Grier said today that if every other feature were eliminated from the fair, excepting the county displays, these seven county exhibits alone would form the grandest agricultural show ever made in Georgia. The seven counties that have entered are pulling tooth and toe nail for the thousand dollars premium.

WALKER IN MACON. Tom Woolfolk's Lawyer Looking After the Interests of His Client. Macos, Ga., August 29.—[Special.]—Today Frank R. Walker, Tom Woolfolk's lawyer, ar-rived in Macon. He proceeded about looking after the interest of his client in a cool, delibafter the interest of his client in a cool, deliberate way, making no fuss about it.

During the day Mr. Walker called on Mrs. Florine Edwards, Tom Woolfolk's sister, with whom he spent some time. What was the nature of his investigation there was not known, but later he met Mr. Thomas Woolfolk, the uncle of his client, and with him he had quite a talk. Mr. Woolfolk felt somewhat agrieved at the report in the newspapers that Walker claimed to have, found insanity in the Wolfolk family, and so expressed himself. Mr. Walker said that the reporter misunderstood him, and that the strain of insanity was from the maternal side. In conversing with Mr. Wolfolk, Walker expressed himself as convinced of Tom's innocence, and said that he felt assured that he could bring to light evidence that would sustain his belief, and convict others of the crime.

Mr. Woolfelk told him that if he could do so he would gain the gratitude not only of the Woolfolk family, but of the entire community and country at large.

Other gentlemen with whom Mr. Walker talked expressed the same sentiment, and said that they were willing to leave no stone un-turned to establish the fact of Woolfolk's in-nocence, provided the slightest evidence of the fact could be produced.

Mr. Woolfolk told Walker that he need fear no trouble in visiting Hazzard district, and seeking all the information he could get, and Walker has gone this evening to that neighorhood. Mr. James Woolfolk sent word to Mr. Walker that he could not meet him here, a he felt that he could not be of any assistance is he felt that he could not be of any assistance in the matter.

Mr. Walker says that after he attends to a little court business he intends making this city the field of operations until superior court sets here in October.

The Woolfolk family, besides being very prominent among the leading families of Georgia and Tennessee, have been remarkable for their lengevity. A number of Mr. Thomas Woolfolk's uncles and aunts lived long lives, all the way from seventy-one to more than one hundred years of age. Joseph Woolfolk lost his life in trying to ride an unbroken house that others foared to mount, after he was seventy-eight years oid.

A BIG NUISANCE ORDERED ABATED. The New Market House Bonds to Be Pur chased By the Bond Commission Other Notes of Interest.

Macon, Ga., August 29.—[Special.]—For a long time the stopping of long trains across Bridgerow, on the East Tennessee road, thereby detaining street cars, vehicles and pedestrians, has been an unmitigated nuisance. People are forced to await the pleasure of the railroad men, and no more courtesy is shown passengers on one of the most traveled thoroughfares in Macon, than would be shown turpentine hands at a distillery near some out of the way station.

Chief Wiley issued strict orders a few days since, to enforce the ordinance governing the stopping of trains at this point, and yesterday Patrolman Joe Porter arrested Conductor John Richardson and summoned him to appear before the recorder tomorrow on a charge of violating the depot ordinance. The conductor was allowed to proceed with his train on condition that he appear here to answer the charges tomorrow.

The Death of Mr. Abner Camp, of Clayton County.

JONESBORO, Ga., August 29.—[Special.]—
The death of Mr. Abner Camp, which occurred at his elegant country home, in Clayton country, two miles south of Jonesboro, yesterday morning at 6 o'clock, was a severe blow to his relatives and many friends of its most noble citizen. His father was the first to settle in this country, where Mr. Abner Camp was born, and where he has lived ever since. He has been on the decline in health for the past twelve mouths, but was only confined to his bed for two weeks. Mr. Camp knew that the end was near, and made his will a very few days before he left us, dividing his property equally among his children.

Everybody who knew Mr. Camp was devoted to him, and he was always found to be charitable, kind and agreeable. He was not only a good citizen and law abiding, but was one of the wealthiest men in the county. Mr. Camp ran a large farm of his own and had a great many tenants, but was not like many men who take everything that their tenants make and advise them not to pay their debts, but on the other hand always made them pay what they owed.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge and was buried today at the family burying ground at 10:30 o'clock with Masonic ceremonies. The relatives of the deceased have the sympathies of the entire community.

To Become the Wife of a Worthy Young Man.

Athens, Ga., August 29.—[Special.]—This afternoon a marriage came off in Athens, which created considerable interest. Mr. Wm. B. Burpee, the well known and expert young carriage maker of this city, and a member of the firm of Burpee Brother, was married to Miss Laura Gordon, at the residence of the groom, Rev. C. S. Owens, pastor of the Oconee Street Methodist church, officiating. Miss Laura Gordon came to Athens last May as a member of the Salvation Army, holding the commission of lieutenant, and since member of the Salvation Army, holding the commission of licutenant, and since that time has been active in the work of that corps in this city. She came from Augusta, and besides being a comely and attractive young lady of twenty, led many of the services and was known as a zealous exhorter and a good singer. Miss led many of the services and was known as a zealous exhorter and a good singer. Miss Gordon is said by Mr. Owens to be a lady of deep and undorfited piety. Certainly her work seems to have touched more than one heart, and when our young friend Burpee presented himself as a convert to her charms of person and spirit, Miss Gordon consented to take the hand of a worthy man and resign her commission in the army. She is no longer a member of this religious hand but is now a her commission in the army. She is no longer a member of this religious band, but is now a resident and wife in Athens. The friends of her young husband wish her much happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Burpee were congratulated by their friends.

He Would Go a Courting. Columbus, Ga., August 29.—[Special.]—
Lieutenant Tommie Farr is no longer an officer in the Salvation Army. One of the rules of the army is that there shall be no courting in its ranks unless the parties shot by Cupid's arrow have been members of the army for at least two years. It appears, however, that Lieutenant Farr has become enamored of a fair member of the army here, and has made a declaration of his love. The result is that at last night's meeting his resignation was accepted. cepted.
Lieutenant Farr is from Augusta, and will probably return to that city.

Mr. Holder's Squeamishness.

From the Jackson, Ga., Herald.

Mr. Holder, the evangelist, in a sermon at Gainesville, alluded to the fact of the Methodist church at this, place accepting a bounty from W. D. Martin, who the preacher said was a great sinner and insinuated that true Christians could not consistently cherish the memory of an ungodly man. The evangelist has little cause to complain on this account, for very many of the Methodists seem to have forgotion that they have concern in the grave, the bounty, it is true, is never forgotten.

An Old Distillery Found.

From the Hartwell, Ga., Sun.

Mr. J. J. Goforthsays the recent high waters on Shoal creek unearthed signs of an old distillery. The washout showed plainly the location, and there were also peach kernels that seemed to be perfectly sound. Mr. Goforth says the distillery was run about forty years ago by a man who professed religion while he was engaged in the business, immediately after which he tore down his distillery and soon commenced preaching, and for many years made himself a power for good.

THROUGH THE BREAST.

A Tragic Murder Reported From Lowndes County.

IKE WEAVER KILLED BY JAKE NELSON' How the Trouble Originated—On a Spree a House of III Fame—The Murderer Makes His Escape.

VALDOSTA, Ga., August 29.—[Special.]—The Nelson-Weaver tragedy has created considera-ble excitement in this county. Alexander Eunice, justice of the peace, held an inquest over the body of Weaver. The jury, after examining three or four witnesses, agreed on a verdict, charging Jack Nelson with the mur der of Ike Weaver.

The testimony as brought out by the investigation showed clearly that Nelson shot Weaver without any provocation whatever. Nelson, who is a young man about twenty-one years old, met Weaver, his friend and companion, at a house of ill fame, kept by Mary Cribbs, on Lewis Ayre's plantation, eight miles north of Valdosta. All the witnesses estified that Nelson was drinking. One said that Weaver was also under the influence of liquor, though this was denied by some of the eye witnesses. Nelson and Weaver got into an altercation about some trivial matter, when Weaver gave Nelson the lie. Nelson said:

"Weaver, you called me a liar, and you must take it back." "I won't do it," replied Weaver.

"Damn you, I'll shoot you," answered Nel-son, and no sooner said than Nelson drew his pistol from his hip-pocket and fired upon Weaver, inflicting a mortal wound in his left Weaver expired without saying a word. Nelson has fled the country and gone to parts unknown. He is a wild, dissipated young man and has always been a source of trouble and annoyance to his father, Mr. Marion Nelson. The deceased was looked upon as a ober and industrious man. He has few rela tives in this section of the state, and there is no one to take an active part in the prosecution of his assailant.

ome Interesting Incidents of the Female ELBERTON, Ga., August 29 .- [Special,]-Your correspondent has recently collected to-gether an account of Nancy Hart, of revolutionary fame, who resided in what is now Elbert county. A short account of this gallant female patriot will doubtless be of some in-terest. Nancy Hart is described as being among the bravest of the brave, six feet high, very muscular and erect in her gait. In dwelling upon the hardships of the revolution, the perfidy of the tories and her frequent adventures with them, she never failed to become much excited. Among the anecdotes told concerning her is the following:

On one evening she was at home with her children, sitting around a log fire, boiling soap in a large pot over the fire. Nancy was engaged in telling her children the latest news of war. The house was a log one, with great cracks, and one of the children discovered a tory peeping through the crack. Nancy never paid any attention to the tory until she got the water real hot, when she poured it through the crack into the fellow's eyes. She then went outside and amused herself at his expense. Another, probably more thrilling, thrilling, story concerning Nancy Hart was published several years ago in the Yorkville, S. C., Pioneer, and which Hart was published several years ago in the Yorkville, S.C., Pioneer, and which gives a good description of her characteristics and her hatred to the tories and love for the whigs. She was always prepared for the tories as they would frequently ransack that part of the country in the days of the revolution, it being thinly settled, but they always left her home worse off than when they came, as she always "fixed them" she said, whenever they came. Nancy Hart and her husband lived on Broad river and up to a few years ago an old apple crchard pointed the place where the house stood. She was most remarkable for her military feats and had professed high tone ideas of liberty. Nancy said she would prove herself a friend to her country "to do or die." All whigs had to hide or be hung. The lily-colored Mr. Hart was not the last to seek safety in the canebrake with his neighbors. Mrs. Hart was not of that sort. She vowed that she would not flinch one inch from a tory. They gave her a call one day, and sitting down at her table ordered a repast. They stackedarms and began to make themselves at home. Nancy seized a gun, cocked it, and with a blazing oath declared that she would blow the brains out of the first mortal who would rise or taste a mouthful, and turning to her son, said: "Go and tell the whigs that I have taken six base tories." They were badly worried at this, but after panishment of scare, they were released. On one occasion during the war she became engaged in a conversation with a tory, soized his gun and marched him into an Amercan fort where he was taken as a prisoner. During the revolution she was frequently of much service in aiding the whigs, and she gave can fort where he was taken as a prisoner. During the revolution she was frequently ofmuch service in aiding the whigs, and she gave the tories much trouble. While Nancy was such a good patriot, it is said she was a bad wife. The spot where she resided was pointed out by an old settler in 1838, with the remark: "Poor Nancy, she was a honey of a patriot but the devil of a wife."

Mr. Rountree adopted the unique pian of inviting the ladies and requested them to select their escorts.

The favors were appropriate, numerous and elegant. At the finish of the german the one hundred couples, together with the other invited guests, literally overwhelmed their host with congratulation and words of kindness.

The whole affair was complete in all the details and the beautiful badges worn by the guests will be long preserved as souvenirs of the delightful occasion. The Piedmont Whig says of the german:

At the close of the ootlillon, the guests essembled on the central step of the west front of this hotel, and were photographed. ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 30, 1887.

A Gloomy Anniversary. To-morrow will be the anniversary of the ous Charleston earthquake.

During the past few days occasional trem ors in Georgia and South Carolina have aused people to think of the terrible disasr of 1886, and many are looking forward to to-morrow with grave apprehensions.

Of course there is no reasonable ground for alarm. Earthquakes do not keep pace with the seasons, nor do they celebrate their own anniversaries. They come and go out appearing to be subject to any fixed law. It would be akin to superstition to expect an earthquake to-morrow because one occurred on that day a year ago. Perhaps few of our readers could now give correct summary of the damage resulting om this great convulsion. The number of killed was twenty-seven; whites, seven; colored, twenty. The number of wounded was never known. The total number of deaths attributed to injuries, cold and exposure was eighty-three. The damage to buildings reached the extent of $5,000,000. Of 6,956 buildings examined the inspectors found ninety per cent injured, and out of 14,000 chimneys not 100 escaped injury.

It is only natural that the people of Charleston and the surrounding country hould feel disturbed when even a slight shock comes along, but they should understand that the 31st of August is not necessarily an earthquake day this year nor in the future. If another seismic wave ever strikes Charleston it will be just as likely to come on Christmas day, as on any other day in the year. On the other hand, it would be a piece of folly to say that there will be no trouble to-morrow. As there has been scarcely a week during the past year without a shake or a tremor somewhere on the continent, nobody need be surprised if they

Tramps, Paupers and Free Trade. The Galveston News, which is an out and out free-trade organ, has a wonderful editorial article on "Protection and Prosperity," in the course of which it says that the south would "Welcome free-trade for a change." This, of course, is nonsense. But the News goes on to remark:

the News goes on to remark:

Perhaps then a number of northern millionaires, who kindly attribute to their section the wealth which they have amassed at the expense of other people's labor, would not continue to have such an amequal share of riches. Waile the northern factory and mine barons, who for purposes of the torial display are confusedly viewed as "the north," we grown rich, the north has sent forth its armies formuse many of whom come south. Under proof trainps, many of whom come south. Under pro-y the north has become a trampdom as fast as postulonardrom. Under protection the north and south have increased in population. Wonderful. Poor people are said to increase faster than the rich. Under protection the north and south have had of acres of fine land and great forests and ful deposits of minerals to develop from their virgin freshness, as they would have had them under any other system of government policy. How could the people of such a country fail to enjoy a sure of natural prosperity? Free-trade ideas will never be advanced by such arguments as this. The tramps at the north are not the result of protection, but of over-crowding. There are a thousand tramps in free-trade England to one in the pers is even larger. The English poorhouse is a more stable institution than parliament itself. Is this the result of free-trade? If the argument of the Galveston News is correct, free-trade is responsible for the tramps and paupers of England, and it is a great responsibility, indeed.

If the census of paupers and tramps could be taken, the blue ribbon would undoubtedly be given to free-trade England. which has a tramp or a pauper to every ten of its population. The Galveston News should study this question.

THE York Sun is still trying to boom David B. Hill for president. This will be a very good scheme hereafter, but, just at present, we advise the Sun to stick to Butler. Benjamin isn't a paying card, to be sure, but he is in for a frolic.

The Cotton Movement

The New York Financial Chronicle, in ats weekly review of the cotton movement, says that for the week ending last Friday night, August 26, the total receipts have reached 19,270 bales, against 9,649 bales last week, 7,270 bales the previous week and 1,499 bales three weeks since.

The exports for the week reach a total of 22,315 bales, of which 17,585 were to Great Britain, 2,548 to France and 2,182 to the rest of the continent. Below are the exports for the week. The total sales for forward delivery for the week are 387,000 bales. For immediate delivery the total sales foot up 11,276 bales, including 5,475 for export, 5,801 for consumption.

The imports into continental ports for the week have been 15,000 bales. There is an increase in the cotton in sight of 83,324 bales as compared with the same date of 1886, an increase of 58,576 bales as compared with the corresponding date of 1885, and a decrease of 313,058 bales as compared

The old interior stocks have increased during the week 284 bales and were, Friday night, 21,384 bales less than at the same period last year. The receipts at the same towns have been 727 bales less than the same week last year. Although the receipts at the outports the past week were 19,270 bales, the actual movement from plantations was 19,540 bales, the balance going to increase the stock at the interior towns. Last year the receipts from the plantations for the same week were 12.207 bales and for 1885 they were 12,624 bales.

The figures from Bombay show a decrease compared with last year in the week's receipts of 2,000 bales, and no change in shipments, and the shipments since January 1 show an increase of 46,000 bales. Since January 1 the total exports of cotton | case of spontaneous combustion on two legs. | invited to pose for that purpose.

to Europe from all India have been 1,832,-

The Chronicle says that the speculatio in cotton for future delivery at New York for the week under review has been sluggish, and restricted almost wholly to the brokers and regular operators on the floor of the cotton exchange, attracting very little attention from outside parties. The feature of the week was the sharp advance on Saturday last, on a demand to cover contracts, arising from the belief that "bear" influences had been exhausted for the present. Monday and Tuesday saw the loss of part of this advance under sales to realize. Foreign advices and crop accounts had little effect, because not very decided in their character; but the increased receipts at the ports were a depressing influence on Mon-

Thursday, notices were freely issued for deliveries on August contracts, with a very depressing effect upon options for this month and weakening the whole market, to which the fall of needed rains in Texas and liberal receipts at Galveston in some degree contributed. Friday there was a further decline, and a very unsettled feeling. Cotton on the spot has met with a good demand for export and home consumption, and quotations were advanced on Saturday. Tuesday and Wednesday-1-16 cent each day. Friday prices receded 1-16 cent, middling uplands closing at 9 13-16 cents.

The Chronicle's weather reports indicate that beneficial rains have fallen in portions of Texas during the week, but that at some points the drouth continues. The correspondent at Columbia, Texas, reports that in consequence of showery weather caterpillars have become numerous and are doing much damage. At other points in the south the conditions have been fairly favorable. Picking is progressing finely.

Ex-Doctor McGLYNN says that he be lieves George was elected mayor of New York. This statement shows that ex-Doc tor McGlynn is more of a fool than knave. More Railroad Regulation.

When congress was considering the interstate commerce act it was predicted by those who opposed the measure that if it became a law it would be only the beginning of federal interference in the manage ment of railroads. It is certain that an attempt to confer fuller powers on the interstate commerce commission will be made at the next session of congress. Senator Reagan, the ancient agitator of this question, has announced his intention to propose some repairs to the bill. Several of its sections, in the opinion of the Texas statesman, need tinkering and he is ready to take Another railroad regulator with advanced ideas has appeared in the person of Senator Butler, of South Carolina. The senator was one of the most determined opponents of the bill and voted against it to the last. He says he still thinks congress has no jurisdiction over the railroads, but that since the power to regulate them has been assumed he is in favor of using it to the best advantage possible. On his way to Washington last week Senator Butler was severely shaken up in a railroad accident and some of his old opinions were jostled out of place. Soon after his arrival at the capital he was interviewed on the subject of recent railroad accidents and he expressed his views quite

The senator said:

"In the first place, there is too much red tape in the so-called system management. The responsible management is too far removed from the operations, and have not sufficient familiarity with the employes or conditions. In the second page, the railroad companies, many of them, work their employes to ed which would prevent any company from working its employes more than twelve hours consecutively. Some of them I learn run the engineers firemen and conductors sixteen or sevente consecutively without intermission for resting. Human nature can't stand it. The result is the poor man goes to sleep on duty, and when an accident occurs is made the scapegoat. It is inhuman and wrong and the railroad authorities ought to be held to a stricter accountability."

Senator Butler proposes to embody a remedy for these evils in the interstate act. He would make it a penal offense for the managers of railroads to work any employe engaged in running trains more than ten or twelve hours a day. He says the government regulates steamboat travel so far as to prescribe the number of passengers a boat may carry and on several other important points. There is no reason apparent to the senator why railroads should not be subjected to similar regulation. Senator Butler, like Senator Reagan, has always been a very strict constructionist of the constitution and a valiant champion of state rights Senator Reagan long ago persuaded himself that interstate commerce regulation is entirely consistent with his theories of state and federal power. Senator Butler does not appear to have reached this point, but he says that since congress has gone into the railroad regulation business it ought to make it amount to something.

He is liable to blaze out at any time. A ournful feature of the business is the probability that the nerveus man will go scot free when he commits a crime. Tem-porary insanity will be the plea in such cases, and when the offender is what is called a nice man, it will be easy to work this racket successfully. And yet this Titusville tragedy is utterly without excuse. If men are to be slaughtered because their wives play on the piano, the country will be plunged into a state of internecine warfare. It is difficult to suggest a remedy, but obviously the first thing to do is to make nervousness unfashionable. The nervous man must be made to understand that he must keep his shirt on.

THE governor very wisely proposes to make the lessees answer for the bad management of the convicts. If this feature of the law had been enforced long ago, we should have heard no complaints against the lease system.

EDITORIAL POSTSCRIPT.

MR. Howells, in the last number of Harper's Magazine, says Washington "is the most charming city in the world."

A BRAND OF soap has been named after Genral Boulanger. If it is a good soap for bubbles it is appropriately named.

Senator Riddleberger in jail for contempt of court! Ex-Congressman Eustace, of West

THE NEW YORK WORLD accuses President Cleveland of appointing Judge McCue fish commissioner to pay off a political debt. As the office pays no salary and requires a good deal of work and worry the president's debt to Judge McCue must have been a very slight one. This silly story is a sample of the stuff the World publishes every day.

OF ALL THE vaulting ambitions that were ever directed toward the presidency that Frank Hiscock, of New York, is the most absurd. Hiscock has been a light weight in the house. He was elected senator by accident and will be a nobody in the senate. And yet this poor man imagines he hears the presider tial bee buzzing about him.

A son of General Belknap a few years ago wanted to take a clerkship in a department at Washington. His father dvised him not to do so if he could get anything else to do. The young man went o work as brakeman on a railroad. He has been promoted, steadily, and the other day was appointed assistant superintendent.

DEMOCRATIC GAINS IN New England during achusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode for 1888. Bill Chandler admits that Blaine would do well to carry New Hampshire over Cleveland by 1,000 majority. The testivet dawn when our general assembly will only be mony in these cases makes nearly 10,000 pages, that in the Lynch-Van Demire case being the most voluminous. GOVERNOR FORAKER has played the demagogue so long that he forgets the ordinary de-cencies of every occasion which affords him an opportunity to assume the role of a political blatherskite. Last Thursday night he was a guest of the city of Wheeling, a democrati city, and a city full of southern people. Yet he made a speech full of sectional hate, in which he said the south was "damnably wrong" in the war. How splendid are the patriotic words of Governor Wilson beside such vile stuff! "I have been asked by some one at my side," said Governor Wilson whether the confederates were traitors. In reply I have only to say the man who asks that question at this day and on this occasion is lacking in patriotism and is inspired by the same sentiments that once moved for the destruction of this union. He is the man who would keep sectionalism alive and fatten on sectional hate. [Cheers.] The day is past for anything of the kind to succeed. This country is grandly united. Let, it remain so forever."

RUSTON, La., August 27, 1887.—Editors Constitution—Dear Sirs: My attention has just bee called to a New Orleans special to Time Constitution of date August 23, which says among other

"At a prohibition meeting at Alexandria this week, Rev. Dr. Parker repeated his ve sion of the incident (relating to Hon. He characterizes Dr. Parker's statement as untrue, and continues," etc.

What I stated at the prohibition convention at Alexandria, was in substance, that after Mrs. Chopin had delivered one of the strongest prohibition speeches I ever heard, ex-President Davis went over to where she sat, and scating himself beside over to where she sat, and seating himself beside het, indorsed her speech in unqualified terms. She then finned upon the lappel of his coather own badge without any protest or dissent from Mr.

ATLANTA, Ga., August 29, 1887,—Editors Constitution: If Mr. Harrell, of Webster, or the whole legislature of Georgia, will go over to Athens and look upon the old buildings and dormitories of the "niversity of Georgia. The committee which went over last winter irom the legislature to look into the buildings, were of the opinion that $50,000 ins stead of $5,000 was needed, but they said it would be lucky to secure the latter amount.

"RECENT GRADUATE."

The Alleged Anarchist's Answer. esterday concerning the malicious arrest of Hal lock in Monigomery, Ala., you do the police of that city an injustice by asserting that they were the parties who were guilty of the arrest and false im-prisonment. On the contrary, the police of Mont gomery I found to be not only dutiful, but courteous and civil to both citizens and strangers. It was a policeman who knew me in Montgomery twenty-two years ago, having worked in the Memphis Appeal with me at that time, who recognized me upor seeing me in the city for the first time since the war, as well as though it was yesterday. Mr. Hogan that is the gentleman's name, assisted me in the ob jects of my visit to Montgomery, which was to get an affilavit in the United States circuit court, by Condescending to furnish me with the required affi-davit. I might mention other gentlemen on the force in that city, who treated me with due courtes and respect.

The sole instigator of the said malicious arrest was a magistrate by the name of B. Screws, and his accessories were Constables Harris and Hughes, and the whole affair originated as follows:

Mr. Grubb, foreman of the Advertiser, where I had worked about a week, on pay day opened the sealed envelope of one Forbes and took $3.50 from the package, and also opened my pay envelope and extracted sixty cents, as he claimed, to pay office taxes. Forbes had Grubb pur under $100 bonds for embezzlement before Magistrate B. Serews, who is the brother of W. W. Scr.yws, of the Advertiser, and B. Screws alsmissed the case after a pretentious trial. Screws next day aske I me to call into his office, as he wished to have a chat with me. I took a seat and Screws called Grubb over and asked him to make a charge against me, which he refused to do. Screws then wrote out a warrant and sent one to the county jail, and presently a malicious search-warrant was issued, and my pockets ransacked and private papers and letters taken possession of, and my lodging pic or ferreted out by the robbers, who took possession of my valise, all under the pretense that I was sending inflammatory, literature through the United State; malls. Serews then concected a fusiliade of lies and criminal libel, which he supplied to the papers, and also caused the same to be sent out in special dispatches.

I now have Screws and his constable, Harris, under bond waiting a hearing before the grand jury, and hope to be able, when the fall courts open, to prosecute all the guilty parties concerned in the outrage, to the full extent of the law.

Hoping you will enlighten the public on this affair herewith, I am respectfully.

DOWN IN MEXICO. General Cervants Was Enton Alive In Sight of His Home.

Mexican Letter.

A few years ago a good deal of kidnapping was carried on in Mexico, money having been genrally the object. Anybody of wealth and influence was liable to be seized in an unguarded moment and spirited away; and seldom, indeed, were the victims ever heard of again, unless their friends "came down" most handsomely. The modus operand, after a man had been secured and hidden, was to post notices here and there within sight of his family—sometimes they were pinned, up ku-klux fashion, with a dagger, or decorated with skulls and cras-bones—stating what sum of money was required to be left within a given time at a certain spot to ransom their relative, and plainly intimating spot to ransom their relative, and plainly intimating that non-compliance with this demand would sea his death-warrant. When the money was prompted his death-warrant. When the money as the last paid, the kidnapped persons were usually released according to promise; but in many instances a fresh demand was made, followed by another and another as long as there were the slightes prospect of further gain.

A BLOOD-CURDLING TALE.

One of the most celebra'ed cases of this kind wa hat of General Cervantes, which occurred, I be lieve, in 1874. He was a prominent politician, in the prime of life, belonging to a family of great the prime of life, belonging to a family of great wealth and influence, and the miscreants who cap-tured him well knew that his reople would move heaven and earth for his release. weeks went by, and though the county assection of the missing man no trace of him was discovered, or was likely to be so long as a per ny could be gained by his retension. His family spent thousands of dollars in the vain search, and in repeatedly depositing large sums of money for his ransom, as indicated by mysterious placards, until they were completely impoverished; and then, moved by the tears of his ditracted young wife and the prayers of his aged mother, the government of red a considerable amount for his restoration But still no Cervantes appeared. At last, by the merest accident, he was discovered—in the heart of the populous city and within a stone's throw of his own dwelling-under the floor of a deserted house, lying flat upon his back in a place barely wide enough to hold him, gagged, bound hand and foot, with several well-sharpened daggers thrust within a hair's breadth of his body so that if he should have stirred they would have pierced him. Having r mained long in this terrible condition he was barely alive when found, and it was only after weeks of careful nursing, during which time he lay speechless and his life hung by a thread, that he was able to tell of his adventures; and meantime, It seems that late one exeming he was standing in his own door, when suddenly a zerape was thrown over mis head by some unknown persons and drawn so tightly as to prevent any outery; then he was placed in a carriage and driven rapidly a very long distance, as he supposed. Doubtless the rapid drive, they having returned to nearly the same point whence they started, was intended for a point whence they started, was intended for a "blind," and he never believed himself so near home. The faces of his captors he never saw, for they were closely masked, and they visited him only at night by the dim light of lanterns. Having gagged and bound him, they first talked of taking down a portion of the wall and bricking him up, leaving a loose place where a brick or two could be removed when it was necessary to feed him, but, fortunately when it was necessary to feed him; but, fortunately for him, they decided upon the floor as less trouble some to themselves. Tearing up a plank and plac-ing him under it, he was found to be too corpulent despite all their crowding, to allow the board to fit despite all their crowding, to allow the board to fit in the place again, so a little earth was dug out to accommodate him with a living sepulche. A few small heles, bord above his face, admitted sufficient air to keep bim in existence, and there he remained for wears, helpless, voiceless, entombed alive within sight and sound of his home, while his friends were ransacking the world fr him. Every night his cantors came removed the plank and hauled his captors came, removed the plank and hauled him up, and with the point of a dagger at his thr. at took out the gag and gave him food, and then walked him up and down the room awhile for exercise. By and by he grew so weak as to be incapa ble of outery or resistance, and then his keepers forced stimulants down his throat, and dragged him about for needed exercise, desiring to keep the breath of life in him as long as money might be forthcoming. Finally, believing him about dead and that all resources of profit had been exhausted, they added mental torture to his misery by assuring him that his friends had refused to pay anything for his ransom, and, crowding him under the plank again, they left him to die at leisure. It happened that very night that a heavy storm came up, and a begar entered the deserted dwelling for shelter, by chance seating himself upon the board under which Cervantes lay. Hearing faint moaning, apparently proceeding from the lower regions, the fellow was frightened nearly to death, believing that it came rom some ghost, and he ran straightway to the nearest priest. Strangely enough, in this lazy country, where suje stitious fancies are of common oc cu. rence, search was instituted, and what remained of poor Cervantes was rescued-not an hour to Atlanta is thoroughly aroused on the subject of the Piedmont exposition which opens in that city on October 10, and will continue two weeks. It will undoubtedly be a granda. Tair. Committees are all actively engaged in soliciting contributions from the citizens, and are meeting with great success. The management is composed of sterling, energetic business men, who are backed by the enthusiasm of business men, who are backed by the enthusiasm of the people of Atlanta that always overcomes every obstacle. There is every reason to believe that this will be a memorable exposition in the history of Geor-gia, and will be productive of great benefit to the entire south. The great feature of the occa-sion of course will be the visit of Presi-dent Cleveland, with members of his cabinet, but aside from this event, which will at-tract a great crowd to Atlanta, the great attractions tract a great crowd to Atlanta, the great attractions which will be offered as part of the exposition will which will be offered as part of the exposition will draw together a large concourse of people. The premium list of the exposition will cover twenty thousand dollars of which there will be ten thousand dollars for racing purses. This liberal expenditure will bring together the finest racers in the country. There will also be three thousand five hundred dollars put out for military prizes, and the president will review the troops on the ground. One of the greatest features of the exposition will be the pyrotechnic display which will cost nine thousand dollars for three nights. Altogether the outlook for a magnificent success is most promising.

"The best rule of reading," says Emerson, "will be a method from nature, and not a mechanical one of hours and pages. It holds each student to a pursuit of his native aim, instead of a desultory miscellany. Let him read what is proper to him, and not waste his memory on a crowd of mediocritice, * * Perhaps the human mind would be a gainer if all the secondary writers were lost—say, in England, all but Shakspeare, Milton and Bacon, through the profounder study so drawn to those wonderful minds. With this pilot of his own genius, let the student read one, or let him read many, he will read advantageously. * * The three practical rules, then, which I have to offer, are: 1.
Never rec d any book that is not a year old. 2. Never read any but famed books. 3. Never read any what you like, or, in Shakspeare's phrase:

"No profit goes where is no pleasure ta'en:
In brief sit study what you next a'fere!" "The best rule of reading," says Emerson 'No profit goes where is no pleasure ta'en: In brief, sir, study what you most affect.'"

How few of us live up to the last of these three rules! How many waste time upon books which they do not enjoy, taking them up withouts motive strong enough to make their reading profitable! How many dawdle over books, with minds half saleep, in a half-hearted effort to do what, for one reason or another, appears to be a duty! Bad Luck.

The Memorial association was represented by Mrs. John Milledge, the president, and about eight other members, and the Veterans' association was represented by Dr. Divine, Mr. S. M. Inman, Mr. W. A. Hemphill, Mr. Colquit, Judge Calhoun, Captain Frank Myers, Colonel L. P. Thomas, Lieutenant George B. Forbes and Dr. D'Alvigny.

The chairman briefly told the objects of the meeting. He said that it was for the purpose of agreeing upon some method of raising money with which to ameliorate the condition of needy confederate soldiers.

In response to a request that the members express their views on the subject Mr. Colquitt and Judge Calhoun made short and feeling addresses. They urged upon the committees the necessity of taking prompt steps to relieve the wants of all indigent veterans who lost their health and their substance in defending Georgia. They believed that by a series of entertainments—concerts, fairs, lectures, etc.—a considerable sum of money could be raised.

Dr. Divine concurred with them. He

Dr. Divine concurred with them. He thought that a grand concert should be arranged as soon as possible. After that was over try some other form of amusement. Let the ladies arrange a game of chess with living figures, and that would catch the crowd. Then some distinguished lecturer might be engaged to deliver a series of lectures. A grand fair could close the series of entertainments. In this way a handsome sum of money could be raised.

"This is all very true," remarked Mr. Inman.

grand fair could close the series of entertainments. In this way a handsome sum of money could be raised.

"This is all very true," remarked Mr. Imman, "this would afford the means to relieve the temporary needs of the disabled and indigent soldiers, but I believe they should have permanent support. Georgia should come to their aid. [Applause.] The state owes it to them. I have in view a plan by which I think a permanent home can be established. In a short while the present capitol will be unoccupied and on the state's hand. The state owns this. Now, my idea is that this should be sold and the proceeds used for the purpose of erecting a home for disabled confederate soldiers. [Applause.] Surely the state would not refuse to do this. If the matter is brought properly before the legislature I am convinced this could be accomplished, provided there is nothing in the constitution in the way of it. I think a committee should be appointed by the Veterans' association to inquire into the practicability of the enterprise."

Several members spoke briefly and heartily concurred in Mr. Iuman's suggestions. Mr. W. A. Hemphill advocated the proposition warmly and promised to do all he could to secure the object aimed at. He, too, was applauded.

At this juncture up jumped an aged soldier who asked the privilege of saving a word.

He spoke only a few words, but they were full of pathos. He said that he recognized two great influences in the representatives he saw before him—the ladies and the press. "The ladies come first, of course, then next comes the press. With these two potential agencies working harmoniously to accomplish an object—a noble object—how can the undertaking fail? There are many poor, dssabled confederates who cannot earn a living. The state owes them a home. [Applause.] I am one of this class. May God smile upon your laudable undertaking, ladies and gentlemen."

Before adjournment several committees were named.

Mr. W. A. Hempalli was appointed to see Mr. L. DeGive and secure the opera house. Messrs. The Gossip Concerning the Vacancy on the Supreme Court Bench.

The lobbies of the state house, and the rotunda and corridors of the hotels have been fairly alive with men and rumors for the past forty-eight hours. There seems to be considerable skirmishing along the line for the vacant seat on the supreme court bench.

There are at least two things settled in connection with the matter. First, every one is agreed that there will be a lot of candidates, and second, it is generally believed that there will be several ballots.

It is not known when the general assembly will order the election—the sooner the better is the general comment—but why it should be best to have an immediate election, no one has yet said. The reason seems to be that if the election is put off for ten days there will be time for arrangements to be made and candidates who will discover that they cannot be elected will come down, thus simplifying matters considerably. The argument for an immediate election seems to be that it will result in a good free for all race, and as it has been a long time since the state has had one of that sort, it will do the people and the boys a powerful sight of good to get kinder' mixed up in one again.

been a long time since the state has had one of that sort, it will do the people and the boys a powerful sight of good to get kinder' mixed up in one again.

Yesterday The Constitution named the following gentlemen as likely candidates: Judges Joel Branham, James Brown, John T. Clarke, T. J. Simmons, Sam Lumpkin, James S. Hook. Today the list has been increased by the addition of the names of Hon. N. L. Hutchins, of Lawrenceville judge of the Western circuit; ex-Judge John I. Hall, of Griffin; ex-Mayor and Judge George Hillyer, of Atlanta; ex-Congressman N. T. Hammond, Attorney General Anderson, and Mr. Alex King, of Atlanta.

It is said that Attorney-General Anderson has received a number of letters, and has had numerous personal requests, that his name be allowed to be used. What answer he has made is not known, but it is believed that he would not accept the place, for the reason that while the salary is about the same as that which he gets as attorney-general, he would, if he was to go on the bench, be obliged to give up a large and lucrative practice.

The sentiment among a large number of the members of the house is that the race will be between Judge Thomas J. Simmons and Judge John T. Clarke. Of course, it is not meant that these will be the only names brought before the legislature, but that in the cind the contest will narrow down to those. Judge James Brown's friends declare that if he allows his name to go before the legislature he will make a very strong fight, and the friends of Judge Lumpkin are equally confident that his staying powers are good. Judge Clarke's supporters are confident that the remine will fall upon him, and at this stage of the proceeding the friends of each candidate are certain that their man will win. While the various gentlemen whose names are here mentioned have been spoken of as candidates, it is right that the statement should be made that no authoritative announcement of any one's candidacy has yet been made.

During this time Mr. McDaniel met and subsequently married Miss Rebecca Walker, daughter of Major Daniel Walker, of Walton county. When he retired from the professor's chair it was to join his father in business, who had removed from South Carolina to Flat Rock, in Henry county. From Flat Rock he removed to Atlanta in 1847, when he established business under the firm name of I. O. & P. E. McDaniel. Mr. A. W. Mitchell and Colonel Elig'Hulsey were admitted to the firm. He continued in business in Atlanta, in one way or another, until two years after the close of the war, when his iron interests at Altoona poccssitated his removal thither. He was an honored member of the city council, and was chairman of the street committee which cleared the principal central streets of the stumps which still disfigured them. He was also the chairman of the committee on public buildings, and in this capacity located the city hall square, and built the city hall, which afterwards his son, Henry D., as governor, had torn down in order to make way for the new state capitol. The first brick building ever erected in Atlanta, Keely's corner, was erected by Mr. McDaniel, in conjunction with his business partners. The old brick building in the rear of John Keely's present store, was built by Mr. McDaniel several years later. In 1855 the well remembered race for the mayoralty between McDaniel and Nelson took place. Nelson was counted in by ten majority. The result was contested, pending which Mr. Nelson resigned, and Mr. John Glenn was elected mayor. As a churchman he was equally prominent and vigorous. He joined the First Baptist church in 1847, and when the Second Baptisi was organized in 1853 he was one of the nineteen original members. The finest church structure of the time was designed by this small congregation, which they had the matisfaction of seeing completed in a short time. Thus it may be seen that during business hours, during leisure hours, and on Sundays Mr. McDaniel's engagements always marked him as a busy man, as one who had to work in order that others might move.

A Historic Event.

In 1883 Mercer university celebrated its semi-centennial. The occasion was a rare one, bringing together as it did the graduates of fitty years, who, in the meantime, had won distinction and grown gray. The central figure in that grand gathering was Mr. Ira Oliver McDaniel, who was the only one of the original professors present. Near by him sat his son, at the time governor of the state. The old man looked around him with tear-bedimmed eye, and was deeply moved by the kind expressions of remembrance from the men who had been his pupils. "It marked a new era in his life," said Mr. Wilkes. "Whenever he would meet one of his old scholars it buoyed him up and set all his enthusiasm into motion." For fity years he had been watching his pupils grow old, and he seemed to grow correspondingly younger. He never forgot his old business associates, but called upon them every time he came to the city. His interest in current affairs remained unabated; his mind remained active, and his general health was always good.

THE CLOSING SCENES.

One week ago Mrs. Governor McDaniel received a letter from her father-in-law, in which he wrote as one with long life yet before him, and Mrs. McDaniel replied that in tompany with Miss Gypsy she would visit him this week. On Sunday he was in excellent spirits. He sang three hymns with such a strong and clear voice that his wife remarked about it. After supper he read a chapter from the Bible, and after singing several favorite hymns, retired. At ten o'clock, Mrs. McDaniel was touched on the shoulder, and turning, aw that her husband was in pain. O. M'DANIEL'S DEATH.

Fifty Years of Active Life-The First Professor of Mercer University-His Early Career in Atlanta.

Mr. I. O. McDaniel died last night at his home near Altoona, in this state. Ex-Governor Henry D. McDaniel is now in the city, to attend the funeral of his father, which will take place from the Second Baptist church at 3:30 this evening.

The deceased had reached a ripe old age, full of honors, noted for his fidelity to religion, his integrity as a business man, and his sterling worth as a friend, He was born on the 19th of January, 1807, in Pendleton district, S.

cty, 1807, in Pendleton district, S.
C., where several generations of his family had resided. In those early days schooling was difficult to obtain, but the boy, with a viu which bespoke the incipient manhood within him, struggled over adverse circumstances, often traveling as far as seven miles to attend a recitation, paying the fifty-cent fee therefor at the close of the les-at the close of the lesson. Such fortitude secured for him a good death, that teaching became his vocation, and for several years he taught school in his native district. taught school in his native district.

In 18:2 Penfield institute was established by anumber of Georgia Baptists, and among the preceptors employed by them was the young Carolinian, who had applied for one of the professorships, which he retained with distinguished ability until the institute grew into a college. He also filled the same position in the college for some time.

a college. He also filled the same position in the college for some time.

During this time Mr. McDaniel met and subsequently married Miss Rebecca Walker, daughter of Major Daniel Walker, of Walton When he retired from the professor's daughter of Major Daniel Walker, of Walton county. When he retired from the professor's chair it was to join his father in business, who had removed from South Carolina to Flat Rock, in Henry county. From Flat Rock he removed to Atlanta in 1847, when he established business under the firm name of I. O. & P. E. McDaniel. Mr. A. W. Mitchell and Colonel Eli[®]Hulsey were admitted to the firm. He continued in business in Atlanta, in one way or another, until two years after the close

He continued in business in Atlanta, in one way or another, until two years after the close of the war, when his iron interests at Altoona necessitated his removal thither.

Mr. McDaniel took a front rank. While he was successful in business, yet he did not allow that to monopolize his time. He felt that there were duties which he owed to his fellow different help a successful the successful in his successful in business, yet he did not allow that to monopolize his time. He felt that there were duties which he owed to his fellow different help as individuals and incommunity. was successful in obtaines, yet he did not allow that to monopolize his time. He felt that there were duties which he owed to his fellow citizens, both as individuals and in community. This made him a public spirited man, one who took hold in every new movement, whether of social, religious or political character. He was an honored member of the city council, and was chairman of the street committee which cleared the principal central streets of the stumps which still disfigured them. He was also the chairman of the committee on public buildings, and in this capacity located the city hall square, and built the city hall, which afterwards his son, Henry D., as governor, had torn down in order to make way for the new state capitol. The first brick building ever erected in Atlanta, Keely's corner, was erected by Mr. McDaniel, in conjunction with his business partners. The old brick building in the rear of John Keely's present store, was built by Mr. McDaniel several years later. In 1855 the well remembered race for the mayoralty between McDaniel and Nelson took place. Nelson was counted in by ten majority. The result was contested, pending which Mr. Nelson resigned, and Mr. John Glenn was elected mayor. As a churchman he was equally prominent and vigorous. He joined the First Baptist church in 1847, and when the Second Baptist was organized in 1853 he was one of the nineteen original members. The finest church structure of the time was designed by this small congregation, which they had the atisfaction of seeing completed in a short time. Thus it may be seen that during business hours, during leisure hours, and on Sundays Mr. McDaniel's engagements always marked him as a busy man, as one who had to work in order that others might move.

MR. M'DANIEL'S FAMILY.
In 1863, Mr. McDaniel's wife died. The In 1803, Mr. McDanners whee died. The family consisted of Henry D., who afterwards became governor of Georgia; Ira Oliver, who lives on the farm at Altoona; Sanders, who was killed during the war at the battle of Monocacy, in Maryland, and Egbert Baldwin, who lives in Montgomery, win, who lives in Montgomery, Ala., where he holds the place of car accountant on the Atlanta and Montgomery railroad. She had married Colonel Samuel M. Wilkes, who was killed at the battle of Manassas, and was thus a widow when Mr. McDaniel met her again. The couple were married, and settled on the farm near Altoona, while Mrs. McDaniel's only son, S. W. Wilkes, settled in Atlanta, and now lives at 131 South Pryor

A HISTORIC EVENT.

In 1883 Mercer university celebrated its semi-centennial. The occasion was a rare one, bringing together as it did the graduates of fifty years, who, in the meantime, had won distinction and grown gray. The central figure in that grand gathering was Mr. Ira Oliver McDaniel, who was the only one of the original professors present. Near by him sat his son, at the time governor of the state. The old man looked around him with tear-bedianned eye, and was deeply moved by the kind expressions of remembrance from the men who had been his pupils. "It marked a new era in his life," said Mr. Wilkes. "Whenever he would meet one of his old scholars it buoyed him up and set all his enthusiasm into motion." For fifty years he had been watching his pupils grow old, and he seemed to grow correspondingly younger. He never forgot his old business associates, but called upon them every time he came to the city. His interest in current affairs remained unabated; his mind remained active, and his general health was always good. years, who, in the meantime, had won

The Election to Be Held Probably on the

There will be a prohibitionist election in Atlanta this fall. That is a settled fact. lants this fall. That is a settled fact.

Early yesterday afternoon it was noticed that an unusually large number of prominent citizens were about the corridors of the Kimball house, and an investigation showed that there was something out of the usual order of things going on. One by one these gentlemen went to room 104 and it was not long before the room was filled.

A count of noses showed that all those present were anti-prohibitionists. There were present prominent, state county and city officials, prominent merchants, law-yers, and men in every walk of life—the men, in short, who were prominent as anti-prohibitionists in the last campaign. All the proceedings were secret, meeting being held with locked doors. meeting being held with locked doors. There are many rumors afloat, however, and the result of the deliberations is pretty well known. It is said that Senator Brown presided. The question of the feasibility of holding an election this year was discussed at length, and it was finally decided that the anti-prohibition cause should be pushed with all the vigor possible, and an election should be held at the earliest possible date.

There was considerable discussion as to whether the election can be held on November 26th, or just what is the date contemplated by the law. It will be held on the 26th, or withing the date of the date there are the effect.

The question of money was discussed at length. Several plans were presented for raising the funds necessary for a vigorous prosecution of the campaign and it is rumored that quite a large sum was pledged then and there. One gentleman is said to have pledged ten thousand dollars. It is thought that a good deal of money can be raised in Atlanta, and that this will be increased by liberal contributions from outside sources. in a few days thereafter.

A plan of campaign, which embraces the immediate appointment of a working executive committee, with members from each ward and militia district, was determined upon. Lists, asking the ordinary to order an election, will be out for signatures in a few days.

The meeting was quite a lively one, and did not adjourn until past six o'clock.

was on wheels.

Arrived at the park a short drive was taken and the carriages halted at the main building. In one corner of the building lunch was served. At the close of the lunch President Collier proposed a toast "To the passenger agents, whose earnest and cordial co-operation had assured the success of the exposition." This was drank amid applause and Mr. James L. Taylor, of the Richmond and Danville line,

Mr. Laylor stated that he was amazed at the scope of the exposition, at the work that had been done and the work that was yet to do. He did not believe any city in the country, except Atlanta, would have undertaken so vasta job in so short a time. The passenger agents had given lower rates to this exposition than had given lower rates to this exposition than any other because they were all interested in its success, and realized the vast benefits it would bring to the south. They would continue to co-operate cordially with the directors of the exposition and would meet their wishes in every possible way. His line was then organizing monster excursions from western Pennsylvania and central New York, in which thay had the hearty connection of the Penns Pennsylvania and central New York, in which they had the hearty co-operation of the Penn-sylvania railroad. He found large numbers of people in those cities who wanted to come south to inspect the country and look for homes. The Piedmont Afr-Line considered the exposition its namesake and would do all commissioner Slaughter was called on as the he felt sure the rate of one cent a mile would be extended into the northwest as far as Chicago, and into the southwest as far as Dallas, Texas. New roads were coming into the agreement every day, and he felt confident that a uniform rate of one cent per mile would be established this side of the Mississippi river and up to Chicago, and that the Texas rate would be half fare, if nothing better.

There were other short speeches from members of the convention and directors of the exposition, and it was near dark when the meeting adjourned and the visitors were brought back to the city.

ENTHUSIASM EVERYWHERE. How the Preparations for the Big Parade are are thoroughly alive to the importance of making the demonstration the biggest thing the south has ever seen, and enthusiastic replies to the committee's letters are piling in daily "Oid Newton will be on hand," writes Mr. S. G. Lester, from Covington. "We can form at least four companies of twenty-five each," Professor William F. Jones, principal of the Elbert Male high school, of Elberton, writes: "I am with you always 'even to the end of the world.' You may rest assured that we will organize a company and fall into line on the 19th of October. With best wishes and a heart overflowing with organized democracy, very truly yours, "Milliam F. Jones."

"The young men of Fairburn" writes Colonel K. A. Nisbet, of the Campbell News, "are full of enthusiasm over the proposition to organize a company, and you may expect us to furnish a crack company."

Mr. George W. Head writes from Dalton: "I find a ready willingness among the young men to join the procession in honor of President Cleveland and his wife: The boys intend to do the 'proper act,' even more elaborately than they are willing at present to acknowledge. Will it be inappropriate to have some specially made fire works for this occasion besides that furnished us in Atlanta?"

"I' will be on hand with a full quota of men," writes Colonel Robert A. Massey, of Douglas-ville. So will many others. These are sample expressions taken from many letters of the same import. There is entansiasm everywhere.

It you are not in a company already, call on Exposition will be opened to the public.

The southern passenger agents met in convention yesterday to complete arrangements for low rates to the Piedmont Exposition. They were in session most of the day and their arrangements were perfected.

At half past four o'clock the directors of the exposition visited the committee rooms and re-quested the members of the convention to take a drive to Piedmont park and examine the exposition buildings. The invitation was accepted and in a few minutes the convention was called for response.

Mr. Taylor stated that he was amazed at the n its power to foster it. Colonel Whitehead, of the Central road, was then called for and forced to the front as the man who had struck the paralyzing blow for low rates to the exposition. Colonel Whitehead said that the Central road, in proposing a maximum rate of three dollars, had simply done what it believed to be best for the interdone what it believed to be best for the interest of the south. It was the policy of the Central to foster cities along its line, and he would do all in his power to make the exposition the grand success foreshadowed by Atlanta's enterprise and courage. He added that he proposed to make his tickets good for the whole two weeks of the exposition and not to limit them to five days, and he had no doubt that his fellow passenger agents would unite on the same basis. Atlanta would have a great exposition, and there was no use in hurrying visitors away. He had ordered the Central railroad tickets good for any date, from October 10th to the 22d, and thought the other lines would do the same.

Colonel Gabbett, of the West Point road, being called on, stated that he dared not interfere it a passenger agents convention, as commissioner Stangater was called on as the man who had started the low rate, and who had worked night and day to extend the area and perfect the system. In replying Mr. Slaughter said he was not a talking man, but he felt sure the rate of one cent a mile would be extended into the porthrest as a well.

He represented a short line, but it had one policy by which it was guided—to do right. He was astonished at the growth of the exposition, and felt sure it would be a great success.

How the Preparations for the Big Parade are 'Progressing.

There should be the biggest kind of a meeting of young democrats at the state library Friday evening.

Every young democrat in Atlanta who is not a member of the Young Men's Democratic league should be present to enroll his name upon the league's roll, and every member of the league should be on hand without fail.

The meeting will be a most important one. Details of the big demonstration will be discussed, and it is expected that a number of important questions will be settled. Let every young man in Atlanta be present.

The preparations for the parade and escort to the president are progressing finely. The young men in the different parts of the state are thoroughly alive to the importance of making the demonstration the biggest thing the south has ever seen, and enthusiastic replies to the enemy its red by the sear willing in definition.

As the ten two year-olds turned from the diagonal stretch into the regular track at the half post, Barrett, rider of Fountain, was thrown, but was uninjured. His fall is suppised to have been caused by a collision, but Barrett claims not to know of any collision. As the remaining nine horses were turning into the main track near the third quarter post, Music stumbled and Colonel Zeb Wird and Sadie Mac came into collision with her. The three horses went down, rolling over the lockeys. Wese, the rider of Zeb Wirl, was shortly after reported dead. Later, it was believed by the physicans that there was a chance for his recovery. Penny was injured about the shoulders and back, but will, it is believed, speedily recover. Winched was able to ride in the second race.

ally subsided into the dullness of the weel before last. Operators are awaiting developments in the Oregon and Northern Pacific stocks, and those were attacked again today. Oregon Navigation, which opened up 2 per cent, was knocked off 234 and finally closed at Saturday's quotations. Mis souri Pacific led an early advance, spuriting up sharply, though most of the gain was afterward lost. The merket closed quiet but firm at about the opening figures. The active list, with but few exceptions, show small fractional advances. The total sales of stock today amount to 222,000 shares.

NEW YORK, August 29-C. L. Green & Co., in their

ment in the Livery ool advices, the inclina-ing any volume of business the cotton market has been rather quiet in movement, and undergone sharp fluctuations. At the outset, under some dis-tion was to sell with prices dropping off some 3@5 points along pretty much the entire line. Subse-quently less promising accounts, especially from Arkansas, infused a stronger tone, and eventually restored pretty much the entire loss, with assistance obtained through new buying orders from abroad and the east, the close ruling fairly steady at within a fraction of Saturday evening's rates. Spots firmly

NEW YORK, August 29.—[Special.]—From Hubbard, Price & Co., through John S. Ernest: The lack of movement in the Liverpool market, where the changes were of slight importance, and some selling orde s from the south, caused our quotations to open 4 or 5 points lower. From this the usual fluctuation was of an upward tendency, and prices closed within one point of Saturday. At no time has the trading been active, and the advance is largely attributable to the strength of the southern markets, where buyers are making inquiry. The feeling in the room is rather bullish, especially for the fuside months. The spot market is firm, with an advance of 1-16. Press reports state that the Ar-kansas crop is one-third short on account of the drouth and worms, and the estimate is 100,000 less than the last. Speculators say that this is the season for lad reports, and consider the crop made. We learn that picking has commenced in Texas, and a correspondent, referring to the central and northern parts of the state, writes that the movement will begin on the 1st prox., and that the cotton is of good quality and staple.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitution,
CHICAGO, August 29—Wheat was regarded as uncertain stuff early today. The final and complete collapse of the San Francisco wheat corner was a strong element of the bear side. Reports from the northwest contained much about dirty wheat and about a disappointing yield in Dakota and else-where. September opened %c lower, but in thirty minutes it was selling at 68%c-only ½c under Sat-urday's close. As the session advanced a decided interest was taken in the visible supply statement. Traders were prepared for anything in the neigh-borhood of a million bushels decrease, and were therefore agreeably surprised at the official exhibit making the decrease 1,425,000 bushels. The effect was an almost immediate advance to 60c for Septem-

was an almost immediate advance to 69c for Septem ber. This comparatively high figure caused more of less realizing, which carried prices back, the last sale being made at 68%@68%c for September. Corn also opened weak and at lower prices. There was considerable nervousness for an hour, but prices soon rallied under a fair demand, and September started at 40%c, sold up to 41c and steadled before noon at 40%c—the closing price of Saturday. May first sold at 44%c-%c under the close, but later sold up slowly to 44%c—the last price of the week. The aging effect on buyers, and there was a decline to aging effect on buyers, and there was a decline to the close. September closed at 40%c, or ½c under Saturday. May reached 45c for the highest point and closed at 44%c, or ½c under Saturday's closing. Oats were slow and heavy. Speculative orders were light, and the shipping demand was hardly adequate to the supply. September opened at 24½c, sold to 24½c and closed at 24%c. Provisions exhibited a quiet and easy feeling, and there were no important changes to note. A few orders from the outside tended to a steadier feeling some cases, but outside figures were not fully supported to the close. Offerings of all descriptions were moderate, and there was no particular pressure to sell, and the demand was confined to providing for a few contracts or transfers from September to October delivery at the current difference. The re-October delivery at the current difference. The receipts of products were not very large, and the shipments of all kinds quite liberal and widely distribused. Eastern and foreign markets exhibited no particular change. September lard opened at 6.40, sold down to 6.35 and closed at 6.37½. September short ribs opened at 7.90, sold down to 7.85 and closed at 7.90. Mess pork was practically unchanged.

THE REMAINS IN MACON.

Meeting of the Bar and Appointment of Committees.

Macon, Ga., August 29.—[Special.]—This morning a meeting of the Macon bar was held at the courthouse, at which Colonel John C. Sutherford presided. The meeting was largely attended, the ob ject being, as stated by the chair, to take proper action to show its respect for the late proper action to show its respect for the late Judge Samuel Hall in a fitting manner. The announcement of the death of the distinguished jurist was made in a short and touching address by Colonel Rutherford.

On motion a committee of nine members of the bar, consisting of Buford Davis, M. R. Freeman, Washington Dessau, George W. Gustin, Plin J. Wimberly, J. L. Hardeman, James E. Anderson, W. A. Lofton, Claude Estes and Thomas Willingham, was appointed to go as an escort to Albany this afternoon to assist at the funeral services which will occur at that point tomorrow.

nt was then resolved that the entire bar turn but to meet the train from Atlanta this after-noon and offer any assistance in their power toward honoring the distinguished dead, or comforting the afflicted family. It was further resolved that the chair appoint, at his leisure, a committed to draw up a proper memorial to be presented to the bar at the next session of superior court.

The chair was authorized to call a meeting of the bar together at any time for the further consideration of the subject, as may be necessary from time to time.

There is very little talk of who will be elected as successor to Justice Hall, but it is generally understood that Judge T. J. Simmons, of the Macon circuit, will receive the manimous indorsement of the bar of this circuit.

So strong is the belief in his success that numerous suggestions are being made as to who would succeed Judge Simmons here, in the event of his promotion. The general sentiment is that Hon. George W. Gustin would don the judicial ermine, which could not fall on mere capable shoulders.

This distinguished and coming young tragedian will open the dramatic season, at DeGive's opera house, Friday night, the 2nd instant, and matinee Saturday, as Bertucio in the Fool's Revenge. Mr. Thornton will be ably assisted by Miss Josephine DeBizin as leading lady. It is safe to predict a large and intelligent audience. This is not the first time Mr. Thornton has appeared before the footlights in Atlanta, and those capable of judging say that he will surpass anything he has ever attempted before, and will prove himself to be justly worthy the many compliments bestowed upon him.

Miss DeBizin is a charming actress and delighted the public in New York, as Juliet. She somewhat resembles Mile. Rhea.

Mr. Grosse, the Merchant Tailor, Has Not Returned, but Sends a Telegram.

Mr. C. C. Grosse, the well-known tailor, has not returned to the city, but his friends have heard from him. His friends, however, only know where he is.

His wife and daughter are near Atlanta.

Mr. Grosse's sudden and to every person, except his family, mysterious departure, proved quite a sensation to his friends when they read of it in The Constitution. Since he came to Atlanta he has been known as an honest, polite gentleman, attentive to his business and faithful with his centracts. No one who read of his departure for one second thought that he had skipped away with a determination to leave Atlanta for good. But the mystery which surrounded his going was the attractive feature of the case. His wife and daughter did not leave the city with him but are stopping with relatives in Edgewood. They, however, do not care to satisfy public curiosity by telling where he has gone or why he has gone. Yesterday a telegram was received from the gentleman by some of his friends but the contents are unknown. Anderson & Co., with whom Mr. Grosse was engaged, are not at all uneasy about him. Mr. Jones, a member of the firm, yesterday said:

"I don't know where the old gentleman has him. Mr. Jones, a member of the firm, yester-day said:

"I don't know where the old gentleman has gone—neither do I care. I only know that he is as square and honest as ever a man was, and that he will be back when he is ready to come. I am satisfied that his mission is one of business, of which I know nothing. He probably should have made his destination known to some of his friends, and probably he has. I had no notice of his intention to leave, and do not care to know more about his trip than he selects to tell when he comes back, which I know he will do."

The baby left with Mary Jackson, the old colored woman on Mangum street several days ago, has been acknowledged by Susie Dunning, the young blonde who was arrested by Mounted Officer Cason Sunday morning. Early yesterday morning the girl was taken before Justice Tanner upon a warrant charging her with deserting her child. The defendant was accompanied by her mother and attorney and showed no signs of embarrasyment, when the accompanied by her mother and attorney and showed no signs of embarrassment when the judge opened the warrant. The prosecuting officer thought that he would be able during the trial to show that the child was a mixed breed, but his plans were frustrated by the woman, who calmly and coolly admitted that she was the mother of the child. Following the admission she introduced testimony showing she was the mother of the child. Following the admission she introduced testimony showing that she had property valued at $18,000 to $20,000. She then informed the court that she intended to provide for the child.

The officers who have been working the case are now thoroughly satisfied that the old negro woman has played quite a game upon them. They believe that her son is the father of the child and that she knew all about its parentage when she was filling them with stories of the rich woman, carriage, etc.

General Philips's application was forwarded to Washington with the hearty indorsement of Mr. Hill and with earnest and hearty reccommendations of many other prominent men. It is thought that the formal appointment will be made by September first. General Philips is one of the best known attorneys in Georgia. He has long been prominent in legal circles and has held several important offices. He is a gentleman of decided ability and his many friends will be glad to learn of his success in securing this position, for which there were quite a large number of applicants.

You may go out of your office in good health; five minutes later a stray shot, a rinaway horse, a falling brick from a building, a collision on a railroad, or a broken bridge, or a thousand other casualties occurring every day, may land you in eternity. Think a moment! If this shall happen to you is your family provided for? The world is a cold and cheerless place for a widow and children, who are penniless. Are you insured? If not, protect your iamily today—not next week, month or year! It may be too late then!

Every Lady and Gentleman Should Read This September 1st is upon us. Eight months of the present year have nearly rolled by and soon another Christmas will be upon us. How many housewives have investigated the best place to buy the necessary daily food and have laid by a fund from knowing where to buy sufficient to make little Eidie, Carrie or Corlinne happy during the holidays. Many have done the best they could, and are now, every day, adding to their saving 20 per cent on prices paid formerly. Now, dear reader, "brevity is the soul of wit;" to be witty now saves us also money, so we will avail ourselves of the opportunity and come to the point. This is thoy & Thorn, who are insisting upon you and all your friends to come over and pay cash for your goods and save 20 per cent. Our trad e is increasing daily; we wish to still increase it. We are having, additional wagons added; new men to our already large force, and still the customers come. Now listen: We have the Regal Patent Flour, the finest high grade patent flour sold in the world. We sell 25 pounds, 85 cents; 50 pounds, $1.70. We sell you to pound cans genuine O. K. We wish to state right here, these cans hold 16 onnees, and not 12 ounces, as your grocer told you last week. Dr. Prices's same weight and ounces, same price. Two pounds Arnour cannod corned beef for 20 cents. We still sell superior lemons 20 cents per dozen for cash—look on your book right now; if you have not paid 35 to 40 cents per dozen the last month we are mistaken. Remember we are headquarters for everything you eat. We buy in large quantities, and you do yourselves injustice when you do not call on us. This fall we will sell citron, prunes, currants, missins, nuts, etc., cheaper than competing house can buy them. We give 16 ounces the pound. M'DANIEL TO REPRESENT GEORGIA At the Constitutional Centennial in Phila delphia Next Month—Other Mat-ters of Interest Noted.

Governor Gordon communicated the news of Judge Hall's death to the general assembly in an official manner yesterday, and ordered his private secretary, Judge Nisbet, to accompany the remains to their last resting place. During the day, Ex-Governor McDaniel was appointed commissioner to represent Georgia at the constitutional centennial celebration at Philadelphia in September.

The Governor and His Cabinet.

THE REUNION of the 8th Georgia regiment takes place today at Rome. For several days matters as to be able to be present, and he did not positively refuse the invitation until yesterday afternoon. He then informed Colonel John R. Towers, the old colonel of the regiment, that owing to the meeting of the capitol commission today, he would not be able to be present. The reunion will be largely attended, and the governor regrets his inability to be with the survivors and their friends.

The STATE DEPARTMENTS were not closed yesterday on account of the death of Associate Justice Hall. But the governor took the proper method of showing his respect for the distinguished dead by naming his private secretary as the party to accompany the remains to their last resting place. Judge Nisbet, the secretary, went down to Macon with the remains on the early noon train, and will be present at the interment. The governor communicated the death of the associate justice in an official manner to the general assembly. The various messages and orders upon the subject will be found elsewhere.

The governor ordered the reward of one hundred dollars to be paid yesterday to H. L. THE HEARING TO BE given the lessees holding penitentiary companies two and three will take place as appointed, on Thursday morning, somewhere in the capitol. If the executive offices are found to be too small for the occasion, the governor will adjourn the hearoccasion, the governor will adjourn the hearing to the supreme court room or some other hearing will be open and public. The governor said yesterday that there would not be any "star chamber" business at all about it, but it would be free and open. Considerable anxiety has been manifested by a number of people to know if the meeting would be open and public, and inasmuch as it was decided to hold it publicly it is likely that a large crowd will be on hand to hear the lessees make their statement.

Ordered further, that Hon. Henry D. McDaniel be notified of his appointment and requested to accept the same." Henry D. McDaniel be notified of his appointment and requested to accept the same." There will be only one commissioner from Georgia, and the honor being conferred upon ex-Governor McDaniel is regarded as a compliment the governor desired to pay his predecessor in office, who was present at the meeting of the governors in Philadelphia that decided upon the centennial celebration.

The state capticl commission will meet today at nine o'clock upon the grounds of the new capitol. After the usual inspection the commission will adjourn to the statehouse, where the usual monthly meeting will be held.

commission will adjourn to the statehouse, where the usual monthly meeting will be held. It is not likely that anything unusual will transpire at the meeting, as the session will be the regular monthly one, but it is supposed that the commission will take some action upon the death of Mr. C. D. Horn, expressing its regret at the untimely death and great loss of one who had displayed in a remarkable degree many admirable qualities and traits.

COMPTROLLER-GENERAL WRIGHT on yesterday received the tax digest containing the returns of taxable property for the year 1887 of Appling county. The amount returned is $1,042,862, an increase over 1886 of $69,812. This leaves only two counties to be heard from, Monroe and Pulaski. The increase in the value of taxable property in the state will approximate an amount between twelve and thirteen millions of dollars. Next year this increase will be considerably larger, as there will then be quite a number of factories and other enterprises that have been free from taxation subject to the usual rate.

The Treasury, agricultural, and adjutant-general's offices yesterday were devoid of any startling information. Treasurer Hardeman paid something over time thousand dollars to the tax collector of Fulton county on account of over payment of taxes for 1886. rs of a Probable Lynching Makes th Sheriff Uneasy-Two More Arrests A New Military Company.

Decatur was quiet but well guarded during the entire night, the guard being a new mili-tary company which was organized during the evening, and which is composed of the best and bravest young men of the town and

The company will be known as the DeKalb

Guards. The leading features of the day yesterday were the arrest of two negro men, the search for Pritchett and the removal of the Goldsmith negroes from the county jail to Atlanta. In the morning Sandy Harrison, a negro who was at the picnic and had a hand in the fight in the cut, was arrested near Lithonia by some officers of that place. After Harrison returned to Lithonia from the picnic, he talked a great deal about the fight, describing it minutely and went so far as to tell some negroes that he had been in it. Harrison's statements were repeated to officers, who arrested him. The negro is well known in Lithonia and has always born a good character. When arrested not conclusive and he was released upon bond.

The search for Pritchett, who was supposed to have killed the marshal, was continued during the day. Parties secured the country in all directions but no positive trace could be secured. One of the parties ascertained that Pritchett was near Mr. Phellan's place and gave that locality a thorough search, but without being able to find him. From persons living near the negro's home the officers learned his wife was busy all Sunday night cooking and that the provisions were stored away as though they were to be sent off. Some of the officers went to Pritchett's house and searching it failed to find the clothing which was there Saturday night. The coat, pants, shoes and hat were all gone. They were the same which the negro wore to the picnic. When his wife was asked which the negro wore to the picnic. When his wife was asked where the clothing was, she denied that they had ever been in the house. During the afternoon it was currently rumored in the city that Pritchett had been found near Sylvester church, about four miles from the city, and that he was desperately wounded. Officers went out to investigate the matter, but failed to find the negro. After the officers returned to the city from the search it was rumored that the negro had been quietly moved away from the church in a wagon just before the officers reached the place. Rumors were also current that Pritchett had been captured and taken back to Decatur. Close upon the rumors of Pritchett's arrest came rumors that DeKalb county farmers were quietly gathering in Decatur, and that they had made up their minds to lynch Pritchett and the Goldsmith brothers. Over the wire from Decatur denials of both rumors reached Atlanta, but did not wholly allay the intense feeling prevalent.

In Decatur during the afternoon it was rumored that a mob was being organized in Stone Mountain, and that it would go to Decatur after dark and lynch every negro in jail charged with being a party to the riot. The rumor came so direct that it was generally believed by the people. Sheriff of what was said to make him feel uneasy about his prisoners, and he decided to remove them to the Fulton county jail. It was then nearly dark. He first consulted with the mayor, Captain Cox and other leading citizens, who agreed with him, and then quickly organized an escort. An open wagon, to which two mules were hitched, was procured and the two prisoners, securely handcuffed to each other, were placed it it. The sheriff and his posse then formed around the wagon and the march was started. Just before leaving Decatur Sheriff Austion telephoned Chief Connolly to meet him with a squad of police. The AUSTIN BELIEVED ENOUGH catar Sheriff Austion telephoned Chief Con-nolly to meet him with a squad of police. The chief answered that he would be there, and Sergeant White and Mounted Officers Harris, Haynes, Cason, Hetson and Steerman started for Decatur. Near Edgewood the two parties met, and, as the police officers surrounded the wagon, Jack Goldsmith said: "You folks don't know how glad we are to see you."

HOW THEY STOOD THE TRIP.

Both negroes were badly frightened during the entire trip. When Sheriff Austin in-Both negroes were badly frightened during the entire trip. When Sheriff Austin informed them that he was going to remove them to Atlanta they were both greatly pleased, but when they were placed in the wagon and the party moved off they became quite uneasy and were nervous until they reached the jail and were safe inside. As the police posse joined the DeKalb squad, Sheriff Austin surrendered command to Chief Connolly. The chief, Sergeant White and Sheriff Austin surrendered command to Chief Connolly. The chief has and Steerman took each a side. The march through the country attracted no attention, but when the party reached Decatur street it began attracting attention. It was yet quite early and the crowds in front of the stores caught on quickly and in a few seconds quite a crowd was following. The crowd was made up of negro boys, men and women and white men and boys but it was orderly. The chief thought it would be unwise to pass up Decatur street through the heart of the city because of the crowds of negroes usually on the street. He turned from Decatur up Bell and then into Hunter. From Hunter through King Fair was reached and then Frazler to the jail. The then Frazier to the jail. The CROWD WAS AN UNUSUALLY LARGE ONE, and all along the line of march it attracted attention. Front porghes were filled, and people flocked to the lawn gates and limed the sidewalks until the prisoners were out of sight.

At the jail the negroes were helped out of the wagon and led into the jail. The crowd, by this time more than a hundred strong, crowded about the building, but only a few entered the office. By Sheriff Austin the prisoners were surrendered to Jailers Poole and Ozburn.
Mr. Poole opened the chain cuffs and then began searching the prisoners. As the chains gan searching the prisoners. As the chains dropped from Jack Goldsmith he heaved asigh of relief, which was heard by all present, and as he was being searched he talked quite freely.

"Do you feel any better, Jack?" he was sked.

"You bet I do," he answered.
"So do I," said his brother.
"How did you sleep last night?"
"Not too well. In fact, we didn't do much

"Oh, cause we was afraid they would break in that jail and take us out and hang us. That jail ain't any too secure any how."
"How do you feel now?"
"Oh, better. This is a strong jail, and they can't get in here at us, and we know it."

SENDING WORD TO HIS MOTHER. "Say, Mr. Austin," said Jack, after a minnce, "won't you send mother word we are?"; I'll let her know in the morning," an-res; There her know in the morning, answered the sheriff.

"Say, Jack, when you left Decatur did you think you would get here safe?" he was asked.
"No, I didn't; and every time a bush moved I thought it was some one after us."

A MILITARY COMPANY ORGANIZED.

DeKalb county has not had a military company in a long time, and the ordeal through which the people have just passed has demonstrated the necessity of one. During the day—Sunday and yesterday—it was discussed, and last night nearly one hundred active men gathered at the courthouse and organized one, enrolling seventy members. Officers were then elected. Captain Ed Cox was chosen commanding officer; P. J. Retley, first lieutenant; H. R. Jewett, second lieutenant; R. E. Barry, junior second and M. M. Turner, orderly sergeant. Immediately after the company was organized the governor was communicated with by phone, and promised to equip it at once. After making the promise, the governor called upon Captain English, chairman of the board of police commissioners, to surrender the guns now racked at police headquarters. For Letting the Members Have Wine, Beer and Whisky.

WILE THE CASE STICK OR NOT?

A negro named Pritchett was arrested on Decatur street by Patrolman Phillips. He an-awers the description given of the negro wanted in DeKalb, but it is not thought he is the one wanted.

The negroes in Decatur held a rousing prayermeeting last night, at which there was much enthusiasm. The meeting did not break up until two o'clock this morning. ANTHONY NOLLY AGAIN. He is in Police Court for Violating the Pro hibition Law Once More.

He is in Police Court for Violating the Prohibition Law Once More.

Anthony Nolly, the negro barber at 54 Decatur street, who has figured in police court as a defendant in prohibition cases oftener than any other person in Atlanta, will appear again this morning and enter a plea to the old charge. Nolly is beginning to be a chestnut with the prohibition detectives.

On Saturday Detectives Reeves and Aldridge were reliably informed that Nolly was again selling liquor, and began watching him. The negro has grown very sharp, however, having cut his eye teeth, and soon dropped upon the detectives, who ceased work as soon as they ascertained that they had been detected. Yestetday, however, they posted the patrolmen on duty near Nolly's place, and by them a careful watch was maintained. During the day Patrolman Philips secured a position from which he could watch Nolly without being seen, and in a shert time saw him selling liquor. The patrolman secured the names of several persons to whom he saw liquor sold, and then reported the facts to the detectives. In the afternoon Reeves and Aldridge went to Nolly's place and after arresting him searched his shop. A large jug of corn whisky was found secreted in the house and was released but the jug of liquor was retained and will be used during the trial as evidence against the negro.

AFTER THE CLUBS

ne Question of Interest Now-The At lanta Independent Club in Police Court--The Wine Rooms.

Can a club room, in which whiskies, beer and wines and all anti-prohibition drinks are kept and dispensed, be maintained in Atlanta while prohibition is in effect, is a question upon which Judge Anderson will pass during the session of police court this morning.

The Atlanta Independent club, a social organization, has asked the question.

ganization, has asked the question.

Something over a year ago—just about the time beer was zetting scarce in Atlanta—a number of young gentlemen, who like an occasional glass of beer, formed an association which they christianed The Atlanta Independent club. A president, secretary, treasurer and board of directors were elected, and a large hall, located at 31½ North Broad street, was leased, fitted up and furnished. The president elected was a Mr. Wm. H. Roach, and upon the night of his induction into office, beer and mixed drinks were abundant, but no one drank enough to show it. The association quickly enough to show it. The association quickly became popular, and upon the meeting nights a long list of applicants for membership was presented. By the rules of the association the

whose duty it was to investigate the social and moral standing of the applicant. If the committee found that he was all right and not inclined to imbibe too freely, it recommended his election. On the other hand, if the applicant was so fend of the beverage that he could not control his appetite, his application for membership was rejected. The association, though soon quite large, was composed of gentlemen exclusively, and for more than a year no trouble was experienced with the officers.

The whiskies, beer and wines which were dispensed in the club rooms were all purchased outside of Atlanta and were paid for out of the treasury of the association, which was filled by assessments upon the members. An initiation fee was charged new members and then monthly assessments went into the treasury and with them the rent was paid, as also the salary of the janitor and other outlays. The drinks were kept in the club room and never permitted to give out. They were served to the members by the janitor a negro named Ben

PAYING AN ASSESSMENT.

Each member was given a piece of pasteboard about twice as large as a street car ticket. Upon one side of the board was a mark showing that it had been issued by the club and upon the other side were a number of parallel lines equally distant from each other. The number of these lines, however, varied on cards, some having five, some ten and some more. When a member was waited upon by the janitor, his ticket was handed over to that functionary, who would punch a hole between two of the parallel lines, the ticket of course becoming worthless when a small hole appeared between each line.

Several weeks ago Detectives Aldridge and Reeves began looking into the club and, although they ascertained positively that ne money ever passed between the janitor and the drinker, they became satisfied that the law was being violated, and decided to make a case. Yesterday morning they laid the matter before Judge Pendleton, who advised the officers to make the case. Detective Reeves called at the club room

The officers of the association have employed attorneys and will contest the case carefully and determinedly. They assert, and no one denies it, that not a drop of intoxicating liquer or any other kind is sold in the place.

The result of the case today will be watched with great interest. There are several other clubs similar to the Atlanta Independent in the city, and if Judge Anderson rules that this one is against the law other cases will be found.

PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATS.

Delegates Gathering at Allentown-Mr. Ran. dall on Hand.

Allentown, Pa., August 20.—It appear likely that the democratic state convention will meet tomorrow at noon with a definit settlement of the vexed question, whether Mr. Randall will be able to control its deliber. Mr. Randall will be able to control its deliber ations and adopt the party declaration on the tariff resolutions adopted by the Chicago national convention in 1884, or whether Congress man Scott and Singerly of the Philadelphir "Record" will be able to commit the party the more propounced utterances of Presiden Cleveland in favor of a reform of the tariff. All other issues have been for the mement cast aside, while the battle royal upor this question has been waged by leaders are delegates. Mr. Randall was early on the this question has been waged by leaders and delegates. Mr. Randall was early on the this question has been waged by leaders and delegates. Mr. Randall was early on the ground, and this morning took possession of rooms at the hotel Allen, where he has been assisted by Congressman Sowden, Governor Curtin and others all day long in work among the delegates. At 5 o'clock Messrs. Scott and Singerly arrived and the fight soon bocame as interesting as any one could desire. The point of vantage which the opposing elements sought to command was the control of the committee on resolutions, which, it was understood, was to hold the key to the situation in the convention. There is to be one member of this committee from each senatorial district a the state—fifty in all.

THE DAPPER THISTLE. The Captain of the British Yacht In

New York, August 30.—Captain John Barr said today that the short spin of het Thistle yesterday was entirely satisfactory to him. It was true that the mainsail did bag him. It was true that the mainsail did bag somewhat, but he said he expected that on first spreading, and it only needed stretching. During a little chaff between a reporter and Mate McDonald about the "potent mystery" that some people have been foolish enough to waggest that the Thistle may have concealed about her, the mate said: "Everybody will be fooled when they see her bottom." He was asked if the public would have a chance to see it, when the yacht was hauled out, and replied: "Of course; why not? They can't build a better one." Another spin will probably be taken tomerrow. Heavy Rains in Texas.
